

STATE POLITICIANS AIR VIEWS HERE

Governor John Dempsey and Mayor Samuel Tedesco lashed out at the Republican party, both claiming their opponents twisted facts and statistical figures in speeches given at the University Monday afternoon.

In their talks, sponsored by the University's Public Relations Forum in cooperation with the Young Democrats Club, the two Democratic officials cited several instances in which they asserted, "the Republicans have twisted the facts."

The mayor said the Republicans use the July, 1953, figure of 453,000 jobs in manufacturing field "but they fail to tell you that Mr. Lodge was governor for 18 months beyond that point and 43,000 jobs of this total were lost by the time Mr. Ribicoff took office."

He cited his own efforts to bring industry into the Bridgeport area and the problems encountered in persuading large-scale manufacturers "to pull up roots in another state and move to Connecticut."

Dempsey called Connecticut "the fastest growing state in the nation" and asked his audience "not to downgrade the state but pitch in to help the state of Connecticut keep going."

He cited as evidence of the state "moving forward" the ward of some $200 million in highway construction contracts within the last year, establishment of a nuclear research committee and the state's first research advisory committee, the proposed establishment of Connecticut's first medical-dental school, a retraining program for the jobless started first in the Bridgeport area and increased aid to education. "I believe my administration has earned the right to be given back the stewardship of the state for four more years," Dempsey stated.

The campaign issue of increased taxes under a Democratic administration also came in for criticism from Tedesco.

"The taxes were increased he admitted, "but the increases were to pay for services that were contracted for under Republican as well as Democratic administrations. I don't say it's all the fault of the Republicans, but it isn't all the fault of the Democrats. It's the fault if you want to use the word of both parties."

John Alsop, Republican candidate for Governor of Connecticut, spoke to approximately 40 students last Friday concerning Connecticut's state of affairs. His talk was sponsored by the Young Republicans of the University.

The basic theme of Alsop's speech was his desire for students to help him and the Republican party in the upcoming election.

He said the Democrats are telling the people that everything is hotsy-totsy, and he strongly disagrees with this point. "We are facing trouble," he stated, "for the young people will come up against great problems."

Alsop said that the national debt has more than doubled during the last eight years of Democratic administration, and he doubts that the last dollar of this debt will be paid off before he dies.

Alsop voiced concern about Connecticut's industry, saying that he feels Connecticut is an industrial state. "Every job produces another job," he stated, and through the production of wealth more jobs will be created.

During the past eight years there have been a great number of service jobs created and a great loss of industrial jobs. Alsop said he is concerned with this, because the population has swelled by 400,000 people.

The gubernatorial candidate denounced the Democratic party for reporting that 30,000 jobs had been created, when in actuality 48,000 jobs have been lost within the state.

Alsop stated that he believes the Democrats' statement, "We are moving ahead," is false. He said the state now pays its biggest taxes yet, but is also faced with the possibility of its greatest deficit.

People of college age, he said, will be faced with the burden of paying off this constant expenditure and debt. This "mortgaging of our future" is inconsistent with good reasoning, he added.

Alsop stated that the greatest challenge facing us is the finding of jobs for all the young people who will be able to become a part of the labor force. "It is vicious to try to treat this with smugness and complacency," and it is shocking and staggering to see the impact of bossism in the state of Connecticut, saying he feels that one man runs the Democratic machine and that this machine runs the state. "Contribution to the Democratic Party" is not the sole criteria for holding jobs of importance within the state government, he said.

In regard to his campaign against the incumbent Governor Dempsey, Alsop reports that the "Democrats are really throwing the book at us."

He said he feels that the people of the state are concerned with the problem of "bossism," and that a Democratic victory will only serve to entrench it. He pledged "maximum service and minimum cost of government in the state."

Referring to a poll that he conducted, Alsop said private industry seems to feel that the state government doesn't give a damn about them. This is wrong, he said, for it is private industry and not the state that should be responsible for an expanding economy.

Alsop said that students should help in this struggle by becoming "arguers and persuaders." He said he feels that students should be able to see through the "we are moving ahead philosophy" of the Democratic party.

FILM FESTIVAL

The Foreign Film Festival will present "Ivan the Terrible," Parts I and II (Soviet classic) at 7 p.m. Friday, Nov. 2 in Dana 102. Remaining films to be presented by the Festival this semester are "The Rest is Silence," a German classic, on November 30 and "Letters from My Windmill," a French classic on January 4.

President Littlefield Hosts Student Council Dinner

President and Mrs. Henry W. Littlefield were hosts at a banquet given at their home Saturday for members of the Student Council. Twenty students attended the annual affair.

Following the banquet, Council members were given the opportunity to ask Dr. Littlefield questions about the University.

One of the questions concerned starting national fraternities on campus. Dr. Littlefield replied that at this time national fraternities did not come into the scope of University plans. He added that the disadvantages of national fraternities outweighed the advantages and that local fraternities gave a feeling of greater campus unity.

Other questions centered around campus lighting, the 10-year development plan and the architectural harmony of the campus.

Clinton Strong, president of Student Council, thanked Dr. Littlefield for making Council members feel that campus problems can be handled within the campus community.

President Littlefield replied that his main interest was to make the University a quality institution and one of the best in the country.

WPKN Gets Zone Waiver For Tower

The University radio station, WPKN, has been granted a waiver by the Bridgeport Board of Zoning Appeals to establish a radio station on campus.

The board granted waivers to the station so that it could install a transmitting antenna on top of the Old Alumni Hall building and use the third floor of the building as a low-power educational FM station.

An application will be filed with the Federal Communications Commission for final approval of the station.

Chancellor James H. Halsey, Vice-President Albert E. Diem and Elmer Maher, assistant superintendent of Buildings and Grounds, represented the University at the Zoning Board meeting.

ABRAHAM RIBICOFF: "It was stupid for the AMA to come into Connecticut during this campaign."

Democratic Senatorial candidate Abraham Ribicoff Monday night extolled the merits of Medicare, the Administration's health and aid program for the aged, in an address to a small gathering in the social hall of the Student Center.

The former Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare and past Connecticut Governor also became vehement in an attack on the American Medical Association for what he termed interference in the Connecticut Senatorial campaign.

"It was stupid for the AMA to come into Connecticut during this campaign."

UB Industrial Design Head Selected for TV Program

Prof. Robert E. Redmann, chairman, Industrial Design Department, has been selected to appear on the award-winning "Meet the Professor" television series, Sunday, Nov. 18.

Professor Redmann will appear second in the 26-program series which will be shown nationally through the ABC television and radio network. An ABC-TV production crew will visit the University tomorrow to film the program on video-tape for the showing.

The program features professors from various colleges and universities throughout the country each week. It is intended to show the professor as a stimulator and exemplifier of inquiry and creativity; to develop interest in college teaching as a career by showing the opportunities and satisfactions of the profession; and to show the professor as a vital and contemporary person in the context of his work on campus, the community, the nation and the world.

Professor Redmann, who joined the University faculty in January, 1954, was named "Teacher of the Year" in 1961. In 1957 his department was one of the top eight industrial design schools in the nation selected by the U.S. State Department's Information Service to represent this country in an international exhibition which has traveled abroad for several years.

Co-ed Appears In 'Glamour'

Priscilla Elizabeth Dunn, a 19-year-old sophomore, appears in the current issue of Glamour magazine as the result of her selection last February as one of 20 finalists in the magazine's nation-wide "Ten Best Dressed College Girls in America" contest.

She was one of 12 coeds selected as honorable mention winners from among hundreds who competed across the nation.

Miss Dunn is a University cheerleader and Dean's list student in addition to having been selected "Best Dressed Girl on Campus" last February. She was one of five coeds named to the Homecoming Queen court two weeks ago, participated in Campus Thunder, '62 and is a member of the Student Christian Association.

JOHN M. LUPTON: "Feederism" vs "leadership." "they" and "we" government and profits and war answer unemployment.

State Senator John M. Lupton, Republican candidate for Congressman at Large, delivered a talk on "The Importance of the Connecticut Elections on the National Scene," last Thursday in the private dining room of the Student Center. His speech was jointly sponsored by the Political Relations Forum and the Young Republicans.

Lupton said that liberalism has dominated politics for the last 30 years, having had its origin with the onset of the Great Depression. He stated that it was caused by the Government having to tax the producers in order to feed the non-producers.

Lupton further stated that the government created jobs and these workers were paid for completing them, but he noted that unemployment was as great at the beginning of World II as it was at the beginning of the depression.

The Senator said we now have a government based on "feederism," rather than "leadership." He said he feels that the candidates of both major parties use a "Gallup Poll" method to decide what issues they will stand for. He stated that this causes the people to be leaders, rather than the normal situation of the people being led.

Lupton said that when both major parties offer essentially the same program, in this manner it makes very little difference if one votes. He stated that legislators of both parties occasionally have to face controversy, for they cannot vote "maybe" or "I'll let you know tomorrow."

Lupton said it is up to us to make a choice between the Socialism that these people are leading us to or our own sys-

SCARLET KNIGHTS

University students are invited to attend an informal dance Saturday evening, Nov. 3, at St. John's A. C. R. Hall on Barnum Avenue. The dance is a benefit for the Scarlet Knights, the Bridgeport Fire Department's Junior Drum and Bugle Corps that were just formed this summer but missed taking top horn honors in their first competition by 1/2 point. Their horn instructor was David Mintell, a University graduate. Special tickets for University students are available at the reception desk in the Student Center.

Editorial

Time to Wake Up, Kiddies

When President Kennedy delivered his address to the nation Monday evening concerning our "revised relationship with Cuba," we could not help but look at the University and see "so what" staring back at us.

There have been several prominent state politicians on campus during the last week but a great majority of the student body probably didn't realize this until they saw these words.

When John M. Lupton and John Alsop spoke to a handful of students we thought perhaps the campus was 95 per cent Democratic. But when the Democrats showed up this week and received the same response, we decided it must be 95 per cent vacuum.

Of course the advanced publicity (and we use the term loosely) these state leaders received left much to be desired, as Governor John Dempsey and Mayor Samuel J. Tedesco "sneaked up on us" so to speak.

It seems to us someone should apologize to these gentlemen for taking up their valuable time.

Students Should be Told About Class Cut Policies

An editorial which appeared in The Pace College Press three weeks ago strongly recommended that a free and unlimited cut system be adopted by the school.

The editorial said that the limited cut policy now in effect should be changed because some classes are not worth attending, because students should be protected from those instructors who feel attendance is as important or more important than achievement and because students of college age should be prepared to accept personal responsibility and self-discipline.

Feeling that the University's cut system is "up in the air" at best, we asked Dr. Alfred R. Wolff, dean of Student Personnel, his opinion of the Pace editorial, suggesting that there are some points to be considered in favor of a free-cut policy.

Dean Wolff said he feels the University's policy on cuts is "rather liberalized" in that the instructor can do as he feels best and can thus consider individual cases. He said that some universities who have tried unlimited cuts have gone back to a limited system because students, especially before weekends, were cutting excessively and experiencing academic difficulties as a result.

Dr. Wolff said he feels a class needs students because they add to what the instructor has to say. There is more to education than the mechanics of a text, lecture notes and tests, Dr. Wolff said. The student actually shares in the responsibility for the success or failure of what is being taught.

Dean Wolff said a university should not turn into a "correspondence school" because of large student absences. He does feel, however, that an instructor can be more liberal with his better students if he feels it is justified, but not so liberal that the value of the class is being sacrificed.

Although the free-cut system does have definite disadvantages, it seems to us that under this policy a student at least knows where he stands. In this respect he is several jumps ahead of the student on this campus.

We therefore call upon University instructors to tell their students at the beginning of the semester exactly how many cuts they will be allowed. If they have not done so this semester we ask them to let their students know now.

A student does add value to the class, but there are definitely instances where time spent elsewhere while cutting a class can add value to the student.

Peace Corps Topic of Talk

Roger Hamilton, Peace Corps representative, will speak on campus Wednesday, Oct. 31. The convocation, sponsored by the Dana Scholars, will take place in T-101 at 2 p.m.

Hamilton, who is connected with the University Public Relations Division of the Corps, will talk on purpose, functions and need for qualified personnel of the Peace Corps.

Following the convocation, Hamilton will entertain questions from the group and will set up interviews with interested juniors and seniors.

Graziano Answered by Van der Kroef

To the Editor:

In the October 18, 1962, issue of The Scribe, Mr. A. M. Graziano criticized Renascence for quoting at length from recent speeches by former Maj. Gen. Edwin Walker. Mr. Graziano also stressed to Renascence the importance of "maturity" and the danger of "irresponsibility." After reading Mr. Graziano's letter I am persuaded that he should follow his own advice.

Mr. Graziano appears to believe that Renascence is presenting Walker "as a model to be admired and followed" by UB students. Renascence no more holds the General up as a model than it holds up Sen. Thurmond, Edmund Burke, or Sen. Tower, whose views it has also repeatedly cited. As a Conservative journal of opinion Renascence is interested in articulating the Conservative point of view, which by its nature tends to diversity.

To Conservatives, General Walker's views merit, and will continue to merit, attention. Whether anyone wishes to model himself after the General or after any individual quoted in Renascence is not of its concern. Being neither in the grip of a single ideological abstraction, nor interested in the institutionalization of human passions, Renascence is committed to individual choice, an old Conservative principle. Mr. Graziano's charge of Walker as "model" is therefore false.

Had Mr. Graziano taken the trouble to consult the General's testimony before the U.S. Senate's Armed Services Committee and that Committee's report, he would have known that Walker resigned upon his own request because of alleged interference by his superiors with the execution of his duties as troop commander.

Mr. Graziano's assertion that Walker "was presumably allowed to resign" because of "his increasingly inability to handle his responsibilities" is a spurious allegation, which renders laughable Mr. Graziano's subsequent statement in his letter that he has "refrained from stating my own political views."

But then it seems that al-

most any slur will do for Mr. Graziano as he attempts to mark the General as mentally unbalanced. Thus Mr. Graziano asserts that the General's speeches during his election campaign "were reported to be disjointed and rambling." Reported by whom, Mr. Graziano? And "rambling" — are JFK's press conferences reported to be "rambling" by the President's opponents? Those who, like Mr. Graziano, appear to set themselves up as judges of "maturity" should avoid the insinuating imprecisions of loaded terms like "rambling."

Mr. Graziano, with an irresponsibility typical of his entire letter, states categorically that Walker "led" Mississippi students in violent and criminal assaults on U.S. marshals. It may well have been so.

But for someone who claims to be so concerned with "responsible" statements it is strange that Mr. Graziano fails to note that the General has specifically and repeatedly denied the charge. It is customary among those who try to be responsible, Mr. Graziano, to wait for the whole evidence, including the defendant's story in court, and for the jury's verdict.

However, Mr. Graziano appears to know all about the Mississippi episode and about the General's condition anyway. Says Mr. Graziano: "In my opinion Walker is not fully in control of himself and therefore not wholly responsible for his actions and thinking." Mr. Graziano thus echoes that incredible government psychiatrist who, without any examination of the General, persuaded a judge to detain him in psychiatric custody so that Walker at first could not get bail.

It is precisely this disgraceful episode which has lent substance to the charge made by Walker's lawyer that the General was made a "political" prisoner. One would not know this, however, from the "responsibility" minded Mr. Graziano. No, from Mr. Graziano rather, we get confirmation about a new "science" which might be called "psychology at a distance" and which consists of making snap clinical judgements about people whom one has never seen.

PRF Pres. Writes About UB Apathy

To the Editor:

It appears to me that the students on this campus have on occasion remarked about a more lively newspaper and seem concerned with the lack of things to do.

At this time I would like to say that in the past two weeks Frank Lennon, Democratic candidate for State Congress, John Lupton, Republican candidate for Congressman at Large, John Alsop, Republican candidate for Governor, Mayor Samuel Tedesco, Democratic candidate for Lieutenant Governor and incumbent Governor Dempsey, running for re-election, have appeared on the University campus with a combined attendance of less than 200 people.

It is truly a sad state of affairs when this dichotomy of reasoning is pursued. How on one hand can the students cry about being able to participate when they have every opportunity, and in turn reek apathy?

Special Police Needed For All Open Social Functions

The Student Activities Office has informed all campus organizations that police supervision must be obtained for all "open" social functions held off campus.

William Wright, director of Student Activities, stated in a letter last week that "The city of Bridgeport and the Bridgeport Police Department have statutes and regulations concerning the assembly of people in rented facilities for social affairs and the required attendance of special police."

Most off-campus halls and establishments provide special police at student "open" affairs and include their costs in the rental price. However, six halls do not. Student Organizations must therefore hire at least two policemen if they wish to hold an affair at the Witch's Den, Falcon Hall

90 Nurses Capped

Ninety student nurses received emblems or caps and 32 registered nurses were also cited for academic achievement Sunday at the twelfth annual Milestone Ceremonies of the College of Nursing.

Martha P. Jayne, dean of the College of Nursing, spoke of the rapid growth of the University's nursing program in her welcoming address. She also spoke of the request this year by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare to consider development of a program for students from other countries.

"The Program has been initiated within our college, and we have admitted to the college this fall two basic students from Viet Nam and four registered nursing students from Ghana," she said.

Other program participants included Bernadine Morgan, Milestone committee chairman and Mrs. Ann McGrath, president of the College of Nursing alumnae.

The Rev. James A. Gay, of St. Peter's Church, gave the invocation and the Rev. William M. Alderson offered the benediction. Selections were presented by the A Cappella Choir, under the direction of W. Earl Sauerwein.

First, apologies to Theta Sigma fraternity for mixing up their dates last week. The annual Playboy Dance will be held THIS weekend. Despite the carelessness of one reporter, the party should provide fun and frolic for everyone involved.

TE-AGP party Friday night at Hi-life Hall was "highlighted" by AGP brother Lenie Schizano, who stole the show with his terrific twist. But must you twist to the Mexican Hat Dance, Len? This party-boy helped to make the night "tops."

Congratulations to Stephanie

Masters (TE) who is wearing Larry Kivel's fraternity pin along with the brightest smile of accomplishment. Don't worry, Stephanie, Queens College never had it so good.

Question for Bob Mayer (SLX): Marcia Blackman is in Marketing... for what?

One of our highly respected frats on campus has put out a Wanted poster for Miss Ellie Mae DoDinkle who made such a hit last weekend with them. Anyone knowing anything about her whereabouts, please contact IFC immediately.

Sorry about the score of the game Saturday, but not half as sorry as about the injuries acquired by some of our players. Wish them quick recovery and inherited revenge for next week.

IDP-TE's Halloween dance will be held at Lake Forest Saturday night with prizes for the outstanding costumed couples. With some of the dress on campus, many may come naturally and run away with the first prize... right fellas?

What happened to Art Sultan's plan to capture Hofstra's cheerleaders on Homecoming weekend? Someone got cold feet. How many years for kidnapping, Art? Good try anyway. Better luck next year.

Word has it that the Tarriers may return next week for the dedication of the "world's largest pair of boots" behind the Library! A dedication ceremony wouldn't be the same without them!

Dining Hall Business Booming

One hundred dozen eggs, 330 gallons of milk, 80 loaves of bread and 850 pounds of meat are but some of the items that are provided to satisfy the hungry appetites of 1,650 students three times a day at the University Dining Hall.

Marsha Buell, dietitian and manager of the Dining Hall said she has adequate facilities for these students, plus the 400 that will be added next year with the completion of the new women's dorm.

"Our recent addition, which seats 500, gives us two new serving lines and expands our kitchen area," states Miss Buell, and "enables us to serve upwards of 900 students at one time."

A full-time staff of 35 people, aided by 73 students who earn their meals through part-time work, serve the flow of students that pass through the Dining Hall three times each day.

Dorm students, except those living in Shelton Hall, are required to eat their meals in the Dining Hall at a yearly cost of $425.

Miss Buell says, "We provide only top-quality food, and are also able to offer choices of vegetables and deserts, as well as all the milk a student wishes. We even have skimmed milk for the weight-watchers."

Many Connecticut residents have become increasingly alarmed over radioactive contamination in the milk supply. Twelve Westport mothers have actually switched to powdered milk because of this.

Miss Buell says, "The University's milk supplier, Mitchell Dairies, is keenly aware of the problem, and they are in constant touch with the Connecticut Department of Farms and Marketing. This contamination level, which has dropped in recent weeks, should decrease even further as cows are barned for the winter and start eating stored hay."

In her role as dietitian Miss Buell plans "skeleton menus"

a week in advance so that she can order the necessary food-stuffs.

"We maintain a constant check on the physical conditions of employees and maintain the cleanest possible conditions," says Brian O'Gorman supervisor of the part-time personnel.

He states that "these maximum standards of cleanliness would be less difficult to maintain if students using the facilities would appreciate that it isn't a public restaurant, but rather a dining hall for students, and would treat it as such, rather than being careless and thoughtless as one might be in a public place."

SLHR Joins Sealtest Block

Members of the Student League for Human Rights have joined with the local chapter of the Negro American Labor Council in boycotting those companies which discriminate against members of the non-white minorities in their employment practices.

Students recently handed out leaflets in the city, asking citizens not to use products made by the Sealtest Corporation. The boycott was initiated by the New York branch of the Northern Student Movement in conjunction with the New York chapters of the Negro American Labor Council.

It stemmed from the apparently discriminatory policies at the Sealtest plant in New York where 10 Negroes and no Puerto Ricans are employed out of a total work force of 1,500 people.

Ice Meets With Library Group

Lewis M. Ice, University Librarian and state membership chairman of the American Library Association, met with the New England Library Association at Swampscott, Mass., on October 4-5 for conferences and a workshop.

Ice, who is also chairman of the Committee on Campus Ministry, attended the Connecticut Council of Churches meeting in Hartford on October 16 to relate the progress of his committee to the Council. The function of his committee is the promotion of, and provision for, Protestant chaplains at various colleges and universities in the state. The greatest need in this area, Ice feels, is the extension of the chaplain services at these many schools.

HIGH TEST, LOW TEST, NO TEST

Just the other night I was saying to the little woman, "Do you think the importance of tests in American colleges is being overemphasized?" (The little woman, incidentally, is not, as you might think, my wife. My wife is far from a little woman. She is, in fact, almost seven feet high and heavily muscled. She is a full-blooded Chiricahua Apache and holds the world's hammer-throw record. The little woman I referred to is someone we found crouching under the sofa when we moved into our apartment several years ago, and there she has remained ever since. She never speaks, except to make a kind of guttural clicking sound when she is hungry. Actually, she is not too much fun to have around, but with my wife away at track meets most of the time, at least it gives me somebody to talk to.)

But I digress. "Do you think the importance of tests in American colleges is being overemphasized?" I said the other night to the little woman, and then I said, "Yes, Max, I do think the importance of tests in American colleges is being overemphasized." (As I have explained, the little woman does not speak, so when we have conversations, I am forced to do both parts.)

Actually, she is not too much fun to have around

To get back to tests—sure, they're important, but let's not allow them to get too important. There are, after all, many qualities and talents that simply can't be measured by quizzes. Is it right to penalize a gifted student whose gifts don't happen to be of the academic variety? Like, for instance, Gregor Sigafoos?

Gregor, a freshman at the New Hampshire College of Tanning and Belles Lettres, has never passed a single test; yet all who know him agree that he is studded with talent like a ham with cloves. He can, for example, sleep standing up. He can do a perfect imitation of a scarlet tanager. (I don't mean just do the bird calls; I mean he can fly South in the winter.) He can pick up B-B's with his toes. He can say "Toy boat" three times fast. He can build a rude telephone out of two empty Marlboro packs and 100 yards of butcher's twine. (Of all his impressive accomplishments, this last is the one Gregor likes to do best—not building the telephone, but emptying the Marlboro packs. Gregor doesn't just dump the Marlboros out of the pack. He smokes them one at a time—settling back, getting comfortable, savoring each tasty puff. As Gregor often says with a winsome smile, "By George, the makers of Marlboro took their time finding this fine flavor, this great filter, and by George, I'm going to take my time enjoying 'em!"')

Well, sir, there you have Gregor Sigafoos—artist, humanist, philosopher, Marlboro smoker, and freshman since 1939. Will the world—so desperately in need of talent—ever benefit from Gregor's great gifts? Alas, no. He is in college to stay.

But even more tragic for mankind is the case of Anna Livia Plurabelle. Anna Livia, a classmate of Gregor's, had no talent, no gifts, no brains, no personality. All she had was a knack for taking tests. She would cram like crazy before a test, always get a perfect score, and then promptly forget everything she had learned. Naturally, she graduated with highest honors and degrees by the dozen, but the sad fact is that she left college no more educated, no more prepared to cope with the world, than when she entered. Today, a broken woman, she crouches under my sofa.

© 1962 Max Shulman

And speaking of tests, we makers of Marlboro put our cigarette through an impressive number before we send it to the market. But ultimately, there is only one test that counts: Do YOU like it? We think you will.

AHSBD Lists Vacancies

Several openings on the Alumni Hall Student Board of Directors are now available for freshmen, AHSBD president Gerry Frauwrith announced last week.

Applications should be picked up and returned to the reception desk in the Student Center no later than Wednesday, Oct. 31.

Applicants should possess the following characteristics, Frauwrith pointed out: scholarship, leadership, dependability, sufficient time, loyalty, cooperation, the will to work, sincerity, integrity and social responsibility.

O'Sullivan, Wolff Okay Intercoms

Intercoms may be on their way back into the New Men's Dormitory, Kevin O'Sullivan, director of Men's Housing, revealed this week.

O'Sullivan and Dr. Alfred R. Wolff, dean of Student Personnel, have both given their approval to the installation of intercoms, but final sanction must come from University Vice-Pres. Albert E. Diem.

"We expect to hear from Mr. Diem today or tomorrow on the situation," O'Sullivan stated.

Diem was out of town earlier this week and unavailable for comment.

"The phones would be placed on all the floors of the New Men's Dorm and would also be connected to the Women's residence halls," O'Sullivan noted.

"The Men's Senate made the original proposal for what amounts to reinstallation of the intercoms," he said.

"They were removed last year after some of the 'wires got crossed' and several long distance phone calls were made."

O'Sullivan pointed out that it would be simple to replace the intercoms as the University still has all of the equipment and installations are still in the walls.

"The Men's Senate cited several reasons why they felt the intercoms should be put back in," O'Sullivan commented, including the fact that they would facilitate communication between the floors and that the women have intercoms in their dorms."

Officers elected at the first meeting of the Italian Club last week are Norman Bacchiocchi, president; Judy Feld, vice-president; Amy D'Alesio, secretary; Leonard Feroletto, treasurer.

The Gym will remain open on Friday evenings beginning November 2 for those students who are interested in gymnastics, weightlifting, badminton or volleyball.

Girls' intramural volleyball playoffs start October 31 at 7:30 p.m. Full teams may be entered in the competition or individual girls who wish to play may register and they will be placed on a team.

Preben W. Jensen, assistant professor of mechanical engineering, presented a paper entitled "How to Proportion the Smallest Cam for Given Pressure Angles" at the Seventh Conference on Mechanisms at Purdue University yesterday.

John Day, assistant professor of art, will exhibit paintings, collages and reliefs on January 2 at the Osgood Gallery, 137 West 55th St., New York. Many of the paintings were done during summer stays at the MacDowell Colony, Peterborough, N.H. Day just sold a 40" x 50" oil-collage entitled "A High City" to the American Council of Learned Societies for its collection in its offices at the United Nations Plaza.

Dr. Joseph S. Roucek, professor and chairman of the Departments of Political Science and Sociology, is the author of "The American Indian in Literature and Politics," published in both English and Italian in the September issue of "Il Politico," and "Congo in Geopolitics," printed in the September issue of "Africa: Trade and Development." The editors of the latter magazine have asked Dr. Roucek to prepare studies of "Angola in Geopolitics" and "The Geopolitics of the Malagasy Republic" for future publication.

Prof. James Jackson of the Art Department will present a speech at the Fairfield public Library November 14 on Impressionism.

Dental hygiene students have raised enough money from selling stationery to send two delegates to Miami on October 28 for the annual American Dental Association Convention.

Dr. David A. Field, professor of physical education, will start workouts for gymnastic teams on Monday, Oct. 29. Workouts will be held every Monday and Thursday at 3:30 p.m. Anyone interested in vaulting, trampolining, balancing, juggling or acrobatics is invited to try out.

Beta Alpha, the University's accounting fraternity, will tour the Avco-Lycoming plant on Wednesday, Oct. 31. Interested students should sign up with Fred Eichorn, Bob Hargus or Mike Whittaker by October 26 so a plant security list may be made up.

A talk on businessmen's fashions will be given by Robert Farrell, instructor in English, on Monday, Oct. 29, at 7:30 p.m. in the private dining room of the Student Center. Coffee will be served. This meeting was originally scheduled for October 17 but was cancelled.

A faculty lecture series on radio station WPKN has been suggested by the station to the University. WPKN program director, Steven Vachss, claims the series will bring the student and teacher into closer contact.

The Sports Car Club will hold an open time-distance rally this Sunday at 1 p.m. with registration beginning at noon. A $2 entrance fee will be charged for the rally, which will begin in the parking lot behind Alumni Hall. Trophies will be awarded to first, second and third-place winners.

The Marketing Club held its second meeting yesterday. Scheduled activities include a field trip to New York, guest speakers and interview arrangements.

The officers are: Russ Palmer, president; Pat Monahan, vice-president; Bruce Callahan, interview co-ordination; Margie Wellner, treasurer; and Charlotte Mrazik, secretary.

There will be a meeting of the Sports Car Club Thursday, October 25, at 8:30 p.m. in room 211 of the Student Center. Two speakers will lead discussion on "Basic Rally Techniques" and advanced information on the upcoming rally will be given out at this meeting.

John J. Driscoll, president of the Connecticut State Labor Council, AFL-CIO, will present a convocation on Wednesday, Oct. 31, at 1 p.m. in Dana 102. "The Labor Movement: A Re-evaluation" is the topic of the address to be given by Driscoll, a Phi Beta Kappa graduate of Wesleyan University who also did graduate work at Brown University and Harvard law school.

"The Danger from the Far Right" will be the topic of a talk given by Frank Donner, author of "The Un-Americans," at 7:30 p.m. in the social room of the Student Center on Tuesday, Oct. 30. The lecture is sponsored by the Student League for Human Rights and convocation credit will be given.

It's The City For Jazz, Top Stars, Fast Beer

By ED GEITHNER

Going to New York this weekend? For the out-of-town jazz buffs, New York offers a host of places to suit every musical taste.

Beside the well-known "big three" jazz clubs, Birdland, Basin Street East, and the Metropole, there are smaller, and less well-known clubs whose attractions and atmosphere will fill the musical needs of almost everyone.

The Village Gate, 185 Thompson St., mixes jazz with international folk music to appeal to a wider audience. Sonny Rollins, Moe Allison, Chris Connor and Art Blakey have all appeared there this year. The Five Spot Cafe opened its new club at Eighth Street and Third Avenue October 15, featuring Sonny Rollins. "Hard bop" and innovation is the rule here.

Max Gordon's Village Vanguard, 178 Seventh Avenue, is New York's answer to the Paris "caves." For Dixie fans, there is Nick's, at Tenth Street and Seventh Avenue South, offering top traditional music. The Half Note, at Hudson and Spring Streets, offers a good view from the bar, along with a $2 minimum.

For explorers, the Coronet Club at 1200 Fulton Street, Brooklyn, sticks to straight jazz. "No singers, no watered-down polite stuff" are the words of owner Juke Brooks. Another jazz spot is the Jazz Gallery, Eightieth St. and St. Mark's Place, where more top names constantly appear.

Since many of these clubs are around Greenwich Village, an excellent place for a fast beer before hopping the subway home is the Bleeker Street Tavern, whose constantly-running taps emit tasty brew. It is located across the street from the Village Gate.

LUPTON SPEAKS

(continued from page 1) tem of free enterprise. He said he stands against this move to the left, in which individuals turn their problems over to the Government. They do this because they are not acting as responsible citizens, but we must decide what path we are going to take, he stated.

The Senator said that in this world there is a "... constantly moving glacier of Communism," which is a menace to our society. He stated that politics has become a form of big business and that people consider government as "they," rather than "we." "This isn't American," he said.

"Both parties have schizophrenia," in that they are divided on whether or not to go along with the present liberal policies. However, Lupton stated, "the Republican party will move away from me-tooism," in regard to the liberal policies of the present administration.

Lupton discussed the problem of unemployment. He said the Democrats feel that we must get moving, but their idea is a greater form of Federal aid to almost everything. Such a program will place greater burdens on the producers of this country, thus making it more difficult for them to expand and curb unemployment in the natural manner, he said.

The Democratic Party tells the workers that they should fight for fewer hours at greater pay, but does not tell them that this must be coupled with greater productivity for the good of the country, Lupton stated. "Profits and war are the only basic answers to unemployment, "for government spending will only increase the amount of debt. A moving society always has some unemployment, he said.

On foreign policy, Lupton said that we should only give aid to countries that support us, for if we try to buy support we will only build up greater resentment. He added that little words like peace, hope and faith are more understandable than big words like appeasement that only confuse.

Student Center Has Lost Items

Have you lost something lately?

Mrs. Marion J. Hotchkiss, director of the Student Center, has collected a girl's raincoat, two girls' cardigan sweaters, two boys' jackets, an umbrella, two pairs of sunglasses, six notebooks, one bracelet, two sets of keys, six textbooks and pads and three head scarves.

Mrs. Hotchkiss says that these lost articles will be held at the Student Center for one week only.

ing this campaign," Ribicoff stated, referring specifically to a series of speeches made against Medicare by AMA officials. Dr. George Fister, president of the AMA, gave one of these talks at the University three weeks ago.

In response to the statement "of utmost national urgency" made earlier in the evening by President Kennedy, Ribicoff praised the President for the general way in which he was handling the situation.

"We are here to talk about Medicare," Ribicoff stated, and he proceeded to compare it directly with social security. He noted that the same furor which has been raised over Medicare was prevalent when social security was initially proposed.

"The interesting thing," he viewed, "is that social security worked. I don't know one authority today who advocates the repeal of social security."

He also explained how Medicare would be set up.

"One-fourth of one per cent of the first $5,200 of a person's income would be taxed," he said. "With the average worker, for example, who earns $4,800 per year, 25 cents a week would be extracted from his paycheck. With his employer matching that figure enough funds would be raised to cover the majority of hospital and doctors' fees for the aged.

"One thing we must be careful not to do," he commented, "is to confuse Medicare with socialized medicine. Under Medicare, the state does not select the doctor or hospital," but merely pays the bill.

Grid Tally At 3-3-0 After Ithaca Battle

By BOB MAYER

Last Saturday afternoon in a game which brought this year's UB gridiron record to 3-3-0, the Ithaca College Bombers rocketed to a 16-0 lead and then stayed off Bridgeport scoring threats to gain a 23-14 victory over the Purple Knights at South Hill Field in Ithaca, New York.

Sam Curko, Ithaca's field-goal specialist, cracked the scoring column early in the first period when he booted a 27-yard three-pointer. The Bombers then went on to score two T.D.'s before UB could register any points.

Ithaca's first six-pointer came on a 55-yard pass play from Larry to Ed Farquhar. The attempted extra-point failed. The second T.D. was scored when Bill Odell darted over from the nine-yard line, climaxing a 58-yard drive. Curko place kicked the extra point and the Bombers led, 16-0.

RIFLE TEAM

All students who are interested in forming a University Rifle Team are cordially invited to attend a meeting at noon Wednesday, Oct. 31, in room 209-211 of the Student Center. The purpose of the team will be compete with other college rifle teams.

Deadlines Set On Intramurals

Phil Leibrock, coordinator of men's intramurals, reminds interested students that the roster deadline for volleyball is tomorrow. Those who intend to compete in the single elimination tournament are advised that they should be prepared to play both Monday and Tuesday nights.

Archery competition will be held Tuesday, Oct. 30, at 3:15 p.m. in the Gym. All men are welcome to enter and the person shooting the highest score will be awarded a plaque.

Third round tennis matches must be completed by Monday, Oct. 29, Leibrock says.

Purple Knights to Meet Kings Point on Saturday

The Purple Knights travel to Kings Point, Long Island, to take on the United States Merchant Marine Academy this Saturday with game time slated for 1:30 p.m.

The Mariners suffered an opening-game loss to Temple but rebounded to whitewash their next two opponents, American International College, 17-0, and Wagner College, 22-0. Last week Kings Point was shut out by Hofstra University, 21-0, as the Flying Dutchmen remained undefeated.

Two weeks ago the Hofstra 11 dumped the Purple Knights, 21-6. This Saturday Bridgeport will be trying to snap a two-game losing streak and improve their 3-3 record.

In last year's fray, Kings

Point beat UB, 21-8, as the Mariners registered more points against UB's defense than any other opponent in the 1961 season. The Merchant Marine Academy this season will generate a strong split-T offensive attack.

Head mentor Harry "the Horse" Wright, a former All-American at Notre Dame University, feels that his squad combines experience and depth and should improve upon last year's record of six victories and four defeats.

Booters Top CCNY, Stay Undefeated

The varsity booters remained undefeated by edging out a stubborn C.C.N.Y. squad, 2-1 Saturday, in a non-league encounter played away.

Pat Quigley, who led the Knights in scoring last season, opened up the game with a first period goal to put the Knights out in front, 1-0. It was Quigley's second goal of the season.

Both teams played a strong defensive game after Quigley's goal, and the Purple Knights led at intermission, 1-0. The third period was also dominated by fine defensive play, but in the fourth quarter

Steve Dunbar added his second tally of the year. With the score 2-0 in favor of the Knights, C.C.N.Y. began the offensive attack, scoring their only goal in the final minutes of the game.

Danny Raskin once again played an outstanding game at the nets for Bridgeport. Other standouts for the Knights were Fred Schneider Sam Slagle and Americo Checchio.

The booters are now 4-0, with a 2-0 record in league play. The Knights face Albany State Teachers College this Saturday at Seaside Park at 2 p.m.

One-Ball Tourney Starts Mon.

University keggers will get a chance to show their stuff beginning Monday when the Alumni Hall Student Board of Directors' "one-ball" bowling tournament opens.

The tourney, which will run through Thursday, Nov. 8, will consist of three games of 10 balls each.

The charges will include a 25 cent entry fee plus the cost of the games. Prizes, including a bowling ball, bowling shoes and free passes to the lanes.

Competition is slated from 3-5 p.m. each day with the exception of Saturday and Sunday.
